

President Unhappy With Rocky's NYC Views

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (UPI) — President Ford's top staff economic aide has denied Vice President Nelson Rockefeller had "the tacit backing" of the White House when he suggested the federal government aid financially troubled New York City, Newsday said today.

"If the city thinks that the federal government will come in with aid if it does A and B, then it will spend its time figuring out what it can do to get the aid," L. William Seidman, assistant to the President for economic affairs, told Newsday in an interview.

"If instead, we say we will not come to the rescue, period, then the city can get into solving its own problem," he said.

The Long Island newspaper quoted other White House sources as saying Ford was "not at all" happy with Rockefeller's statement Saturday.

Rockefeller suggested at a dinner in New York that congressional aid might be merited if the city comes up with a concrete plan to balance its budget.

"We do not believe, based on what we know now, that the federal government should become financially involved," Seidman said in the interview. Seidman and other Ford administration officials rejected any suggestion that Rockefeller "may have spoken with the tacit backing of the President or that he was floating a trial balloon for the President," Newsday said.

In Washington, White House Press Secretary Ronald Nessen indicated Monday Rockefeller was on his own in supporting congressional underwriting of New York's financial reconstruction, a measure Ford has opposed consistently.

Nessen was asked whether the White House was endorsing Rockefeller's speech Saturday which encouraged New York officials' hopes that Congress might be wooed into aiding the city.

Nessen said he could only provide Ford's endorsement to "parts" of the Rockefeller speech and on the conflict between the positions he said: "I leave that for you to say."

"Why is there the assumption that New York City is going down the drain," Nessen asked. He said Ford believes that with the aid of the state of New York, New York City has the power to recover fiscal stability.

Meanwhile, in Albany, Lawyers for a group representing police officers were prepared to go to a higher court to stop Comptroller Arthur Levitt from loaning $250 million in state employee pension funds to ward off default by New York City.

The Police Conference of New York State, Inc. saw their challenge of Levitt's right to invest the retirement funds in state notes rejected Monday by State Supreme Court Justice George L. Cobb in Catskill, who refused a request for a preliminary injunction.

Cobb's action appeared to open the way Levitt to use the retirement money to keep intact a $2.3 billion city bail-out plan needed to avoid default by the city through early December.

But, a spokesman for the police group said the next step — in a legal battle which could end up in the state's highest court, the Court of Appeals — would be to ask the Appellate Division to temporarily stay Levitt from investing the funds and to hear arguments to overturn Cobb's ruling.

Cobb heard arguments by the Police Conference, a lobbying group for 45,000 policemen statewide, and the State Solicitor

General's office Friday in Albany and handed down his decision Monday from his home chambers.

Levitt, who oversees state pension system funds totaling $7.1 billion, proposed buying state securities to provide cash for the state to advance New York City under a complicated financing arrangement approved by a special session of the legislature last month.

State and city officials admitted that the success of efforts to block Levitt from using the pension funds would have jeopardized the entire $2.3 billion scheme, which was to provide a sizeable chunk of cash needed to help the city meet obligation coming due by week's end.

Al Sgaglione, president of the police group, said opposition to the investment was based on the contention that Levitt was in a conflict of interest situation as both the buyer and the seller of the state notes.

"As overseer of the pension funds he would be, in essence, buying state notes from himself in the role of state comptroller," Sgaglione said.

Levitt proposed the purchase of state notes after it became apparent that the state would have trouble marketing its securities to raise the second of three $250 million cash advances to the city called for under the bailout plan.

In a related development, Abraham Beame, who has to come up with plans to trim $200 million from this year's city budget by Wednesday, has so far unveiled proposed cuts totalling only a quarter of that amount.

At the same time, the mayor said he would challenge as too high estimates of the city's three-year $800 million deficit made by the newly created Emergency Financial Control Board.

Beame disclosed his plan to slash $52.2 million from city contributions to various institutions and programs at a five-hour briefing Monday night for the Board of Estimate.

It was expected the $150 million remaining of the first-year cuts ordered by the control board would be taken out of various city agencies and departments which were making plans to pare their budgets by up to eight percent.

Angered by the threat of layoffs and a three-year wage freeze, leaders of the city's municipal labor unions were scheduled to meet later today at the headquarters of District Council 37 to discuss possible responses.

'Sink or Swim' Attitude By County Residents

KINGSTON Ulster County residents have mixed opinions about the possibility of New York City defaulting on its bonds, but most feel that the city should sink or swim on its own efforts and oppose suggestions that the state or federal government bail New Yorkers out of their financial troubles.

"I don't think they should be helped," said Mrs. Sam Mercer of Woodstock. "I'm afraid it (default) would hurt the state, although I would hope they won't default."

Ruth Kelly of Kingston is another who believes that the city should be forced to get itself out of the financial mess it is in. "They keep asking for help but they never say anything about changing the system that got them into trouble in the first place," she said. "Any help we give them will just be first aid—it might help temporarily but it won't solve the underlying problem."

Tom Shallcross of the Town of Gardiner majored in business administration in college. "Anyone who has had any kind of business training could see this coming a long time ago," he said. "I don't know why it came as such a surprise. The city certainly hasn't run its affairs in a very businesslike manner."

Asked for specifics, Shallcross cited the generous pay and pension benefits paid to city police, firemen, sanitation workers, and other municipal employees. "It's just too much," he said, "especially when you consider the work day some of them put in. The city has to hire 22 men to do the same amount of subway car cleaning that 12 men do in Montreal, for instance."

Mrs. Bernard Carle of Kingston feels that New York City should become a separate state. "Maybe if they became self-sufficient without worrying about the bureaucrats in Albany, they wouldn't find themselves in such a mess," she believed.

Mrs. Arline Barton of the Town of Ulster thinks the city has established the wrong priorities.

"You read about all those parties and concerts they put on in the parks," she said. "They aren't a lot, but they do cost money. The city is so intent on tourist business that they forget the little man who lives there."

John Fragetta is a believer in the sink-or-swim philosophy. "They got themselves into this mess, let them get themselves out," he feels. "We have financial problems of our own, and we don't ask New York City to bail us out."

One unidentified man had the most terse comment of all. Pausing just long enough to hear the question, he walked on with a muttered "Who cares?"

SOME FACES IN THE CROWD OF 800 AT KHS

A Successful Fashion Show

More than 800 persons flocked to Kingston High School Monday night to view the color and pageantry of the 7th Annual Freeman Fashion Premiere.

This Year's show featured, for the first time, fall and winter fashions for men, women, teenagers and children. Sports clothes to evening wear, from vacation ensembles to bridal gown, luscious furs PLUS an evening gown valued at $800 were part of the gala evening.

A highlight was the awarding of a vacation trip to Elbow Beach Surf Club in Bermuda to Mrs. Colleen Misove, 36 Hillcrest Avenue.

In place of the usual scenery, the Freeman Fashion Premiere featured the use of fall and winter color slides of various Ulster County scenes.

Again this year, as in the past, the show was staged for the benefit of United Way of Ulster County.

Debate . . . Central Broadway the Topic

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON "What is the city going to do for Central Broadway?" was the question posed to Kingston's three candidates for mayor last night at the American Legion Hall and for the about two hours the candidates tried to answer it.

Francis R. Koenig, Democrat incumbent: The mayor outlined a meeting he had held with members of the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association (who sponsored last night's debate), City Planner Robert E. Pritchard and Community Development Agency Director Ralph Marallo in his office on Sept. 16.

Basically, according to the mayor, it was an exchange of ideas for the rejuvenation and, if necessary, rehabilitation of the Central Broadway Corridor. Koenig assured the about 50 persons in attendance that survey work on preliminary planning was already underway by consultants hired by the Community Development Agency. Later he told the Freeman that he expected the results of those surveys to be available for public review by the middle of next month.

William K. Darling, Republican: Darling pointed to his own record of activity as a Central Broadway Businessman—he owns H. F. King Corp.—detailing his expansion and upgrading of his immediate area. Darling will move out of the H. F. King on one side of Broadway to a newly renovated building across the street in order to make way for a new firm that will employ 120 persons.

He said the residents "should not have to wait five and a half years for a Central Broadway plan."

Bernard Singer, Conservative—Singer promised that within 30 days after he was elected he would go to work on a comprehensive plan for Central Broadway. He called for more and better traffic control for pedestrians. He called for "places where people can rest" and suggested that what was needed to coordinate the whole thing was "an intense and determined drive to interest investors in a shopping complex, beautification of the Central Broadway Corridor and general upgrading of the area."

That in general, represented the views of the candidates Koenig claimed victory on that particular question, contending that his opponents had not offered any plan for Broadway while he had offered "something constructive."

"If there was a difference between the philosophies of the three men, it was Singer and Darling favoring private enterprise as the main revitalizing factor for Central Broadway with the mayor leaning towards the government, in this case, the Community Development Agency and any additional federal/state funds the city might be able to "piggyback on top of that."

Singer and Darling were both questioned on their qualifications to hold the office of mayor. Singer from the viewpoint of "conflict of interest" and Darling from the point of experience in government.

The issue of conflict of interest with Singer was raised in regard to his being a Town of Ulster Businessman. A questioner asked where his loyalties would be Singer insisted his loyalties were in Kingston—he started his tire business on North Front Street but was forced to leave when the city took his property for parking lots about 15 years ago—and he further stated that upgrading would benefit the whole area.

Darling said that he had made provision for the operation of his business so he could be a full-time mayor. He said he demonstrated his commitment to Central Broadway "right in my own backyard" and as far as experience pointed to the fact that he ran a bank (Darling was in banking for almost 20 years prior to Questions were raised about the activities of Pritchard in regard to Central Broadway.

Darling opined that Pritchard's talents weren't being properly directed. Singer said planning was a function of the mayor's office and the mayor said that the planning department was a "key department playing a key role." He said Pritchard had been involved in many programs other than Central Broadway and saw the prime purpose of the planner as one to "continually investigate" the availability of federal and state funds for the city.

Ford Signs Resolution For Sinai Observers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says Congress has unfinished business on writing America's role in the Israeli-Egyptian Sinai agreement although he has been able to deliver on a promise to supply 200 civilians to place in desert monitoring posts.

Ford signed a congressional resolution Monday approving the American participation in the disengagement agreement. He said, however, he will consult with Congress about "what is required to sustain...our diplomatic efforts" in the Middle East.

Another part of the complex agreement involves American promises of aid to Israel and Egypt. Israel is expected to receive $2.5 billion in military and economic aid and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Sunday Ford was willing to discuss aid in general terms with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat who arrives in Washington Oct. 26.

Ford today turned his attention to another problem with Congress: how to keep down spending. He planned a trip to Hartford, Conn., to raise money for the Republicans and to try to win acceptance of his $28 billion tax and budget cut proposal that has not gone over well in Congress.

A spokesman said Ford will discuss "what has transpired" since he submitted his proposal to Congress 10 days ago.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen made it clear the President intends to make his tax program the centerpiece of his campaign.

"Congress needs to give up its habit of spending other people's money," Nessen said. Nessen assured reporters Monday he is accurately reflecting the views of Ford when he criticizes members of Congress who say they cannot put a ceiling on spending until they have a look at the fiscal 1977 budget.

Ford has been using the fund raising dinners, such as the one in Hartford, to establish his own party leadership and to sharpen the attack on the "big spenders" in Congress. Both Ford and Nessen also have cast a few biting asides against the "latest recess" Congress has taken.

Ford may travel to Florida late next week for more of the same political fund raising appearances, and perhaps other points in the South. But in the coming weeks, his main focus will be on foreign affairs, starting with the state visit by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to the White House Oct. 27. Ford and Sadat also are expected to meet in Florida.

The President plans to fly to France for the seven-nation international economic conference in mid-November. He hopes to arrange a meeting in Europe with Syrian President Hafez Assad to continue the Middle East peace momentum but observers believe such plans may have hit a snag.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is traveling to mainland China at the end of the week to make arrangements for Ford's post-Thanksgiving visit to Peking. The trip is expected to last less than a week.

Breakthrough

Woodstock firemen stood by for over six hours Monday after a Walter Davenport Sons propane gas truck broke through a private bridge off Larsen Lane in Woodstock, rupturing a gas line on the underside of the truck. Firemen poured water on the truck until the leak was repaired. The truck was then pulled out by a wrecker and the remaining propane gas from the 3,000-gallon tank was transferred to another truck. The accident occurred at about 11 a.m. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Freighter Mutiny Statements Taken

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Five survivors of the sunken Panamanian freighter Mimi have given statements to officials investigating the crew members' role in the apparent murder of four West German officers.

Unconfirmed reports have indicated one of the five crewmen stabbed the officers in an abortive attempt to take the ship to Cuba and then sank the vessel, but officials have refused comment.

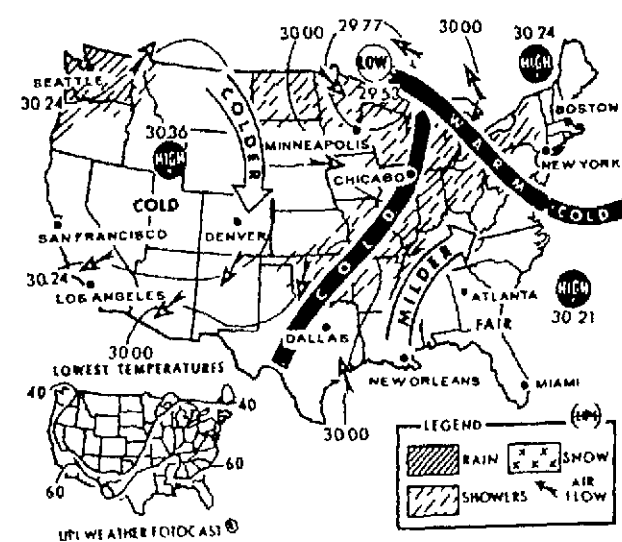

Louis T. Gidel, a deputy district official of the U.S. Immigration Office, said the five seamen — four Indonesians and a Filipino cook — had given their statements to officials of his office, the FBI and the Coast Guard and each would be examined carefully.

"We hope to have this thing sorted out and some conclusions reached by tomorrow," Gidel said Monday.

The Miami Herald today quoted a source close to the investigation as saying the murder of the four officers and the scuttling of the ship were the work of Indonesian crewman Gun Supardi. The source said Supardi reportedly stabbed the men and chopped open sea cocks below water lines to sink the ship.

Capt. Manfred Opperman of the West German freighter Lalli, which rescued the five Mimi crewmen from a life raft Saturday morning, said Supardi confessed to the murders and subsequent sinking. However, the source said Supardi refused to repeat the confession to federal officials Monday.

The other crewmen were identified as Malik Abdul, Paulus Heydenmans and Mohammed Syddik, all of Indonesia, and Ponciano Masong, of the Philippines. Gidel said the men were held in the West Palm Beach City Jail.

More Attica Trooper Indictments Expected

ALBANY (UPI) — With a report on the scope and style of the Attica prison rebellion investigation due Wednesday, UPI has learned that seven or eight more law enforcement officers have been indicted.

A Capitol source told UPI Monday night that the indictments will be processed this week, adding, "they would have been done sooner but today (Monday) was a holiday and that backed things up."

Several troopers are among those named in the new indictments, the source said, but he did not know if any corrections officers at Attica were included in the papers handed up by a Special Wyoming County Grand Jury. The source said those indicted were "just troopers, I understand" and did not include state police commissioned officers. He said he did not know the nature of the charges.

Trooper Gregory Wildridge, 38, assigned to the Buffalo suburb of Orchard Park, was indicted on a charge of first degree reckless endangerment last week — the first non-inmate accused in the probe of the riot that claimed 43 lives, the nation's bloodiest prison rebellion.

Wildridge pleaded innocent at his arraignment last Friday. He was accused of shooting a shotgun in a reckless manner when state police stormed the prison yard September 13, 1971 to recapture it after inmates had held hostages for four days. Wildridge is still on duty.

The special grand juries named to look into the rebellion are still in session. Meanwhile, a special report by former State Supreme Court Justice Bernard S. Meyer on whether the investigation was properly conducted is due to be given to Gov. Hugh L. Carey Wednesday.

Critics of the probe — especially of the first grand jury's indictments of 62 inmates or former inmates and no indictments of law enforcement officers — claim the new indictments are being handed up now to defuse the special report.

Opponents of that view claim that state police are being made scapegoats in an effort to appease minority groups and civil rights activists, who had charged the probe was a whitewash because only inmates were named. In a related development Monday, State Police Investigator John H. Donohue, president of the union which formerly represented state police, urged Carey to call a special session to provide legal defense funds for any trooper indicted in the Attica probe.

Donohue, president of Local 1908, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers, AFL-CIO, said in a letter to Carey that law enforcement officers were being used as "pawns" in the Attica case.

Donohue also told the governor and state legislators in the letter that they should reject any plan to grant amnesty to persons indicted in the probe, saying that would put "convicted felons who rioted on a parallel with dedicated law enforcement officers so that all might go free."

He urged, instead, that the state provide legal funds "to prove the innocence or guilt of those who really caused the Attica situation."

Capture Illinois Convicts

SALEM, Ill. (UPI) — Two "extremely dangerous" escaped convicts who eluded pursuers and tracking dogs for two days have been captured by police and FBI agents. A small army of police and FBI agents combed wild honey-suckle thickets and dense woods today in search of two other fugitives.

The two fugitives from the maximum security wing of the Marion federal penitentiary caught Monday night were walking in opposite directions along railroad tracks east of this southern Illinois town. They were arrested shortly after a resident told police one of the fugitives had come to the door seeking a drink of water.

Maurice Philon, 40, of Oakland, Calif., was captured by Marion County sheriff's police as he walked toward town, about a half mile away. Officers had focused their search in the area after Philon stopped at two homes to ask for a glass of water.

Police said Philon was armed with a thin wire that could be used as a garrote.

About an hour later, police apprehended Ed Roche, 39, of Katonah, N.Y., the alleged mastermind of Friday night's daring break from the Marion prison — the government's replacement for infamous Alcatraz Island.

Roche, armed with an empty sawed-off .410 shotgun apparently stolen from a farmhouse, was caught by FBI agents and Clinton County sheriff's police about three miles east of Salem as he headed out of town along the tracks, authorities said.

'Quick Draw' Gun Accident

By Matt Spireng

TOWN OF OLIVE

A Copiague, L.I. man practicing his quick draw technique Monday afternoon with a .22 caliber revolver was hospitalized after shooting himself in the leg.

State police said Charles A. Russo, 46, was target shooting in a shed on property he owns in the Town of Olive off Mill Road when the mishap occurred at about 5 p.m.

Russo was putting the pistol back in his holster when he accidentally pulled the trigger and the weapon discharged. The bullet struck him in the lower right leg, fracturing a bone.

Russo was first taken to Benedictine Hospital and was later transferred to Albany Medical Center Hospital, where he was listed in fair condition today.

Meanwhile, in other area police matters: Kingston Police arrested Thomas Kennedy, 23, of 349 Albany Avenue on Monday on a warrant charging him with criminal possession of hypodermic instrument and with criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree.

The charges stemmed from a Sept. 4 incident when police were called to a West Chestnut Street residence where a woman told them she thought her husband was dead inside. Inside police found Kennedy lying on the floor and allegedly found a hypodermic needle and a small quantity of a substance believed to be cocaine. Kennedy was treated and released at an area hospital.

New Court Standards Implemented

ALBANY

Implementation of new standards and goals to reduce court delays has begun in the third judicial district, which is comprised of seven counties, including Ulster, according to Judge Ellis J. Staley, Jr., administrative judge of the district.

The standards and goals, adopted recently by the administrative board of the Judicial Conference, would reduce delays in criminal, civil and family court actions. The standards are to be achieved in stages by Jan. 1, 1979 under the supervision of local administrative judges who will make sure that procedures to insure compliance with the standards are followed, that all participants in the court process fulfill their responsibilities and that sanctions are imposed against participants who unnecessarily delay court proceedings.

"The courts within the third judicial district have made substantial progress in recent years in eliminating court delay," Staley said. "I therefore expect that all of the courts in each of the seven counties of the district will supply the extra effort needed to comply with the disposition schedules established."

"The speedy disposition of felony cases in the county courts of this district will receive the highest priority," he continued. "A system of justice which delays the trials of defendants in criminal cases is neither a fair system nor a just one. The right to a speedy trial should not be an abstract constitutional right. It is a necessary element of life in an orderly society."

"I look forward to working with the district attorneys, judges and lawyers of this district in eliminating delays in our criminal justice system. Achievement of this important goal will do much to make that system both fair and efficient, and truly deserving of public respect," Staley concluded.

Recent Freeman interviews with superior and family court judges and the district attorney in Ulster County indicated general satisfaction with the new standards and goals and that no major problems in complying are envisioned.

CBA Favors Gov't. Intervention

KINGSTON

The Central Broadway Businessmen's Association feel that strong government intervention in the "importantly multi-faceted" Broadway Corridor is about the only thing that will save the area from further decline.

Glenn Fitzgerald, president of the CBA, in a letter to Ralph Marallo, executive director of the Community Development Agency presented at a meeting between businessmen and city officials on Sept. 16, said that the previous attitude of "let the retailer do it" has had a "disasterous effect" on an area that he says boasts 139 stores doing some $25 million worth of retail business a year.

"While everyone was abandoning responsibility and dumping it on the retailer as if Broadway were not a shopping center, the retailer in fact had neither the resources, powers nor trained skills to do the job. Fortunately, now many people understand that Broadway is not just retailing but is much more," Fitzgerald said.

He went on to say that "downtown government" must better understand the truth about Broadway's many roles and activities. He offered a series of ideas to be considered for implementation "to turn around the demise of the Central Broadway Business District" including:

- Creation and implementation of a plan to give Broadway a Colonial look including street lights. (The city has spent well over $100,000 in the past 10 years on new street lights for Broadway along its entire length.);
- Walk lights at three major intersections, Cedar, Henry and East O'Reilly Street;
- Three additional parking lots: between East O'Reilly and Grand Street, between Downs Street and Elmendorf Street and between Elmendorf and the Albany Avenue interchange;
- Repaving from East O'Reilly Street to the Albany Avenue interchange. (The city repaved between East O'Reilly and Delaware Avenue this year);
- Two mini-parks, later amended to even smaller sites described as "rest area's with benches and tree plantings;
- Designation of a specific area for a shopping complex;
- Planting trees and improved sidewalks;
- Professional planning to include the creation of a master plan for the future development of the Broadway Corridor.

pairs and is now reneging in its agreement with the State," Gilman stated.

Gilman said that if he does not receive a satisfactory response from the ICC and FRA, he will call for a meeting "with all responsible parties" including the State DOT, Penn Central and Federal rail officials.

Gilman said he has encountered numerous roadblocks in trying to resolve the 17-month old problem, in April, he received word from the State DOT advising him that the State was reluctant to spend funds on repair, regarding it as a federal responsibility.

This week Gilman received a letter from State DOT Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler, expressing concern about "blaming the Poughkeepsie Bridge situation on the State."

over a year, through innumerable bureaucratic delays, while awaiting the repair of this important span," Gilman said.

"Earlier estimates listed the cost of the Bridge repair at $650,000. While dragging its feet, the Penn Central has been at the receiving end of two sizeable fiscal windfalls, a $350,000 fire insurance settlement for bridge damages and the awarding of a freight rate increase," Gilman said.

Gilman noted that the State DOT had agreed to share the bridge repair costs with the Penn Central.

At the time the rate increase was approved, rail officials stated that a portion of the additional revenues would be earmarked for the span's revitalization.

"It is unconscionable that Penn Central is withholding funds earmarked for bridge re-

Bridge Efforts Continue

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th) said today he is undertaking further steps to bring about the repair of the fire-damaged Penn Central Railroad Bridge in Poughkeepsie.

Repeated efforts by the Mid-dletown legislator seeking repair of the Hudson River span which has been out of commission since May 8, 1974 have been blocked.

"The Poughkeepsie Bridge repair is vital to our region's economy. Undue delays by the railroad and by state and federal agencies have severely hampered business operations," Gilman said.

Gilman said he is contacting both the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Railway Administration, urging both agencies to undertake prompt action to guarantee the repair of this vital rail link. "Our region has suffered for

Discuss Candidates' Night

Mrs. Carol Kunz (L), voters service chairwoman of the League of Women Voters of Saugerties, and Len Cane, executive vice president of the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce, discuss final arrangements for the league's upcoming candidate's night, to be held Wednesday, Oct. 15, at 7:30 p.m. at the Saugerties High School cafeteria. Cane will moderate the event which will feature candidates running on the county level. (Freeman photo)

Starkman Charges Precedent Deal

TOWN OF ULSTER

"The suspected real reason for the 'sweetheart deal' negotiated by Town of Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino for the Boice family was to 'set a precedent for the Sabino family to claim their own easement damages to land they sold to Kingston School District for $330,000," according to Democratic candidate for supervisor, George Starkman.

Last week, Starkman dropped what he called a "bombshell" when he revealed that Sabino and the Ulster Town Board used taxpayer's money to benefit the Boices'.

Starkman alleged that $40,000 was paid to Boice for sewer easements while other taxpayers were only paid one dollar. He also alleged that taxpayers who paid an average of $500 for their own sewer hookups were obliged to pick up the tab for $15,000 worth of hookups on the Boice's property.

"It is obvious that the sewer project in the Town of Ulster has been grossly mismanaged," Starkman said. "The real question here is did the town board act properly? They (members) appear to be unconcerned with the costs involved."

"The Boice's contract (and a few others) are known in certain circles as 'sweetheart deals' — meaning it is not an arms length transaction. I suspect the real reason for these 'sweetheart deals' is to set a precedent for the Sabino family to claim their own easement damages," Starkman said.

"The best example I can give as to the proper handling of these easement damages is the present roadway project on Ulster Avenue Mall. Every property along both sides of Ulster Avenue Mall has suffered easement damages, Starkman explained. "But we don't see the State of New York going along and handing out easement money to everybody. Why not? Because everybody is benefiting by the new state highway project. In the same way everybody benefited by the new sewer project? Why should the Town of Ulster taxpayers go around handing out easement money?" he asked.

"Sabino owes the taxpayers an answer to the following questions," Starkman said. "Was a professional appraisal made of any damages prior to any easement payment in excess of one dollar? If the appraisals were made, did the town board review them?"

'They've Got a Problem'

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON Gwen Wood has a problem with the Republican nomination for alderman in the 12th Ward: she can't get rid of it.

Peter J. Mancuso also has a problem with the Republican nomination for alderman in the 12th Ward: he can't accept it.

This limbo-like situation is the result of two factors: Mrs. Wood will be moving out of the Ward in mid-November and could not serve if elected. The board of elections says that as long as she's living in the ward she's a candidate.

The roots of this dilemma go back to last summer when Mrs. Wood was nominated as the Republican candidate for alderman to run against Mancuso, the incumbent Democrat. Mrs. Wood made it perfectly clear to Republican leaders at that time that she had no intention of running for the office since she and her husband, Michael K. Wood, were even then planning to move out of the ward to another section of the city.

The GOP, unable to find a candidate against the formidable Mancuso (he usually gets about 65 percent of the vote) asked her to submit her name as a "stand-in" to give them more time to find a candidate. She did so "reluctantly."

Mrs. Wood wrote the Board of Elections in early September notifying them that she was declining the nomination, adding that she felt it would be unfair to the voters to have her name on the ballot when she could not serve if elected.

According to the Board of Elections, she was about a month late with her declination (July 29) and therefore remained on the ballot as long as she remained in the ward.

Meanwhile, the GOP, assuming the position was vacant due to Mrs. Wood's declination, approached Mancuso with an offer of the Republican endorsement. Mancuso accepted.

Frank Fabbie, the Republican leader for the city, who finds himself in the middle of this snafu, is understandably upset about the whole matter.

"I always thought that the Board of Elections ruled on specific cases," Fabbie said. "It seems to me that the rules are only guidelines that can be bent when warranted. We think we've got a good case."

The Board of Elections thinks not. "It's kinda rough," laments Fabbie. So, the situation in the 12th Ward is this: Gwen Wood is the Republican candidate for alderman. Peter J. Mancuso is the Democrat/Conservative candidate.

File ERA Suit

NEW YORK

A group of concerned taxpayers has filed suit against the New York State Division of Human Rights—and its Commissioner, Werner Kramarsky—seeking to prevent the use of state money for the purpose of promoting the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

Operation Wake-Up, a statewide coalition of concerned taxpayers that has campaigned for defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment. When the proposal is placed before the voters in November, contends in its lawsuit that "the interference of the Human Rights Division in the campaign on this referendum issue is an infringement on the human rights of those New Yorkers who oppose the amendment."

Nine plaintiffs, all members of the organization, filed papers in the Supreme Court of New York County. A decision is pending.

An Invitation From the Handicapped

Officers of The Handicapped in Action, an organization created to help improve the social, economic and recreational opportunities of the area's handicapped adults, discuss plans for an open public meeting that will be held Wednesday, Oct. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Holy Cross Parish Hall on Pine Grove Avenue. Organization members will discuss future plans and activities at the session, and seek assistance and encouragement from the community at large. Shown (L-R) are Betty Baker, assistant president; Mary Jones, delegate-at-large; Kenneth F. Coombs, president and Steve Bullen, vice-president.

Bows and Arrows

The Ulster County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has come out strongly opposed to deer hunting with bow and arrow. While many area archers will object to what might be interpreted as meddling in a recognized sport, the society's arguments are too valid to be dismissed lightly. The bow and arrow are primitive and inefficient instruments for a humane kill, and the known fact is that countless deer, while suffering arrow wounds, still manage to elude the hunter and die lingering and agonizing deaths.

The SPCA, in its statement, recognizes the need for culling deer herds, since large numbers of the animals cannot be supported by the land and mass starvation results. What it does condemn is the inept botchings of many unqualified archers resulting in unnecessary pain for the deer. The society has released figures from Michigan showing that of 70,000 deer carcasses found, more than 30,000 of them had died slow and painful deaths from arrow wounds that had missed the vital mark. Bow and arrow hunting is a practice that should be stopped.

Ford's Restraint

The decision by President Ford to curtail his public appearances and travel during October is a response to the urgings of security experts and to the concern of the of the American people after two attempts on his life in less than a month.

The President's earlier determination to "stand tall" and continue his direct contact with the public is understandable. But while we admire evidence of strength and courage in our leaders, we also want them to live.

And a group of behavioral experts at Stanford University agree that one incident often serves as a stimulus for others. A one or two-month moratorium on open contact with large crowds was suggested as a means of reducing the "contagious effect" of the recent gunplay in Sacramento and San Francisco.

Prof. David Hamburg, a psychiatrist specializing in violence, emphasizes that there really is no adequate way to protect the President from the seriously disturbed people in our society except by minimizing his exposure.

Hamburg is convinced that the behavior of our candidates—above all, presidential candidates—must change. Mr. Ford apparently has been persuaded.

Americans of all political leanings must approve of the President's new commitment to restraint.

The issue in the professor's words, "is whether we let voters decide who will be President or let assassins decide."

Berry's World

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—We have spent months, as part of our watch on waste, digging out the details of a $25 million Army boondoggle.

When the military brass squander the taxpayers' millions, they invariably spend more millions to cover it up. The misspending, therefore, is sometimes difficult to trace.

The story is complex. Let's call it the Anatomy of a Boondoggle.

It began in December, 1968, when the Army awarded a $136 million multi-year contract to General Motors to produce a fleet of "super trucks."

To win the contract, GM had to meet operating specifications for a truck far tougher than the commercial trucks that the Army had been using.

The generals were sufficiently pleased with GM's offer that they ignored a study from Kaiser Jeep, which claimed the company could meet all the performance specifications and still save the taxpayers millions.

Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., and the General Accounting Office, quite properly, demanded to know why the Army had overlooked a possible opportunity to save money. So the Army in 1971 belatedly agreed to conduct comparative tests of both the GM and Kaiser trucks under identical conditions at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds.

A grueling, 30,000-mile test proved what the Army experts had already concluded. Although the initial cost of the Kaiser truck was slightly lower, the GM truck not only was sturdier but cost far less to maintain.

The test results stated, for example, that the GM truck went more than twice as far between mechanical failures than the Kaiser model. One Army expert called the GM vehicle "the best truck of this type I've ever seen."

Another Army analyst, who rode in both trucks, said at the test's conclusion that the GM model was in "top condition" but the Kaiser model was "literally falling apart." The Army experts agreed emphatically that GM had the better truck.

Thus vindicated, the Army might have been expected to go ahead with the procurement. But this was too logical for the military mind. Instead, the Army inexplicably cancelled the GM contract in May, 1971.

This was no simple matter, since GM had already geared up for production. GM demanded and received $12.9 million for disassembling the production line.

Another $12.4 million, which had already been invested in research and development, also went down the Pentagon drain. The GM cancellation, in other words, cost the taxpayers a painful $25.3 million.

For this substantial sum, the Army received 27 prototype trucks, a set of blueprints and some special tools of no use except for assembling the truck that wasn't.

Thus, the Army effort to produce "more truck for the buck" wound up, instead, producing no trucks but costing a lot of bucks.

But this, unfortunately, isn't the end of the story. The Army is now preparing to spend $145 million for 33,000 commercial trucks. These are little different than the trucks that the Army in 1967 insisted weren't adequate for rugged military duty.

Inflation, meanwhile, has sent costs soaring. So the Army must now pay about the same for the inferior trucks as it would have cost to produce the superior GM models.

Army experts have acknowledged to us privately that the commercial trucks will be woefully inadequate in the field. The Army ordered these trucks with fuel-eating V-8 engines and automatic transmissions. The Army could have saved $5 million by purchasing the simpler six-cylinder model not to mention the gasoline savings of 5 million to 9 million gallons a year.

An Army spokesman contended that the GM truck "exceeded minimum requirements" and didn't fit into the Army's "life cycle costs" budget.

Footnote: The waste, which we have carefully documented, doesn't include countless man hours that all the auditors have spent investigating, compiling and evaluating data for the super truck that was never built.

COAL CASH: The Island Creek Coal Company, a subsidiary of Occidental Petroleum, has reported an unbelievable profit increase of 12,000 percent since 1972—a feat unmatched by any other American firm.

Its coal profits have gone up, acknowledged Occidental's president Joseph Baird, from 11 cents to $12.93 per ton. "We want the maximum dollar return on investments," he told us frankly. "We would sell it higher if we could."

Alas !

On the Right

New York City Is Not the Nation

By William F. Buckley

course aware that 70 per cent of the American people live in the cities, half of them in the inner cities. That means a lot of votes, which incline Democratic in the first place. Since it is absolutely basic to Democratic economic superstitions that money that comes from Washington is free ("let us federalize the entire welfare function," said Morris Udall over the weekend, in tones that suggested: "Let's let Aunt Matilda pay for it"), it sounds like a very good issue.

The Republicans, on the other hand, are not entirely helpless. They have the difficulty of the entrenched public ignorance about economics.

There is no doubting the fact that most Americans precisely do believe that if the checks come from Washington, they are spontaneously generated. It will require prodigious economic analysis to penetrate that superstition. But for once the Republicans have over-thing going for them that is cultural in nature, and New York City is absolutely central to it.

A few weeks ago, a retired writer for NEWSWEEK Magazine, living now an apparently blissful life in the quiet of Arizona, published a letter in the NEW YORK TIMES answering the long string of narcissistic letters in which

New Yorker after New Yorker had congratulated himself and his city on spectacular contributions to American culture. "Oh no," came the voice from the West. "Not at all. You do not understand. Out here we don't see it that way at all."

The writer went on to explain in a few words that New York was not, in his part of America, a symbol of the Metropolitan Museum or Lincoln Center or of twinkling windows along Fifth Avenue. It was the place where most of the advanced theorizing goes on defending the counterculture, emasculating the courts, promoting inflation, defending smut, and, through the two great news weeklies and the three great networks, passing along the word to the rest of America what Americans ought to think, whom they should vote for, what they should deplore, what celebrate, what books and movies they should see, and whether they should be permitted to pray in their schools.

Now both positions respecting New York City are caricatures, but neither so much so as to rob them of political serviceability, and the Republicans had better begin drawing their guns fast, because the Democrats have already drawn theirs, and they are making a pretty substantial bang.

The first thing for the Republicans to do is to convince the other cities of America of one plain truth, namely that if every city overspent by as much as New York City has done—the statistics on this will be forthcoming—we would be through. Remember, America can pay off notes if it wants to—all it has to do is accelerate the money-machine down at the Treasury. But eventually the money won't buy anything.

New York is not entitled to any special consideration that Chicago is not entitled to. It is popular to say that the tax base in New York City is too small. Very well, widen it: but why does Congress have to tell Albany how to handle its dealings with Gracie Mansion?

They will tell you that New York City has an inordinate share of the nation's welfare cases. Very well, let a percentage of the welfare cases move elsewhere, where the cost of living is less. What New York City cannot win is any informed debate that trains on the extravagances of its way of life. Here, if the Republicans are adroit, they should have no difficulty at all. It will not be hard to ask why a teacher in Phoenix should give a part of her salary for the purpose of increasing the salary of a teacher in New York who is already better off. Concerning which, more later.

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

The Aging Labor Movement

going to draw up their wagons and fight out their Caucasian manhood in the bars and nightclubs of Frisco, too many of them are too old to be too immoderate. There was a joke running around the place that Brother Meany had started a youth movement which consisted of removing all the nonagenarians from the Executive Council.

This is not to say that organized labor can be ignored. With 14 million workers affiliated with the AFL-CIO and the new campaign reform law favoring it, the organization is indispensable to all Democratic candidates, a number of whom came to speak. The most interesting response that this procession of faithless and flaccid orators was able to elicit came from Joseph Ames of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. Brother Ames wrote a song to be sung in tune to "Casey Jones":

Now, a pollster came a-knockin' at my door
He asked if I would tell him who I'm voting for
He had a long list of presidential possible picks
To be the Democratic candidate in '76.

(Chorus)
Pick a name!
One that's not charisma
Pick a name!
One that's heaven-sent.
If none is to your liking
Then you're in the undecided 89 percent.

The middle-aged white men of the AFL-CIO are scarcely the only people who react to the list of presidential possibles with intense disinterest. But what is worth remarking on is the organization's own lack of direction. There were the proper number of speeches decrying the plight of the poor and the unemployed, but they were uttered with a singular lack of conviction. You got the impression that the connection between the AFL-CIO and the poor is the same as that which exists between the poor and the wealthier branches of Christianity. It is a topic which ancient tradition requires them to talk about on formal occasions like ecumenical congresses and annual conventions.

More to the point are the words of Brother Meany in 1972 when he said in an interview, "Why should we worry about organizing groups of people who do not appear to want to be organized? If they prefer to have others speak for them and make the decisions which affect their lives, without effective participation on their part, that is their right; frankly, I used to worry about the membership, about the size of the membership, but quite a few years ago I just stopped worrying about it because to me it doesn't make any difference. It's just the organized voice that counts."

Indeed, the AFL-CIO power is enhanced of most employees remain unorganized. If the size of the membership were substantially increased it would cause division and conflict between unions. As a small but unified fraction of the labor force, AFL-CIO power in a disorganized society of isolates is magnified.

The present situation makes it possible for labor to continue to be the junior partner of big business, but the partner which can supply the precinct workers on election day. The extent to which big labor and big corporations have gone into business with each other was illustrated by the leaflets the United Steelworkers were distributing outside the hall.

These argued for legislation to prevent the French, in the person of Baron Rothschild, from taking over the Copperweld Corporation of Pittsburgh. The company's current management has been in a big fight over this. But while keeping the present management may help the union, its campaign to stop the importation of foreign capital isn't going to help unorganized workers or the unemployed who should benefit from the jobs new investments would create.

The labor movement, however, has become the labor business, and it is too late for it to change. As a business, Brother Meany runs it drably but well.

Elegant and warm best describes this Bleached-Australian opossum coat modeled by Elaine Stewart. The pelts are horizontally worked and the coat is flared. This style has two zippers, may be worn to the floor, mid-calf, or as a jacket for that fun-fur look. The fur garment is styled and made on the premises at Sterly's Furs, 304 Wall Street.

Esposito's Cleaners and Tux Shop, 338 Broadway, presents Jim Lemister modeling the "Westwood" by Lord West. The color is camel and the fabric is a polyester double knit. It has its own matching vest and tie. The ruffled shirt is a two-tone combination of camel and white.

State Senators to Speak Here on ERA

State Senator Richard Schermerhorn and State Senator Emanuel Gold, of Forest Hills, will discuss the State Equal Rights Amendment Tuesday, October 21, at 8 p.m. at the George Washington School. This ERA Information Night is sponsored by the American Association of University Women, Kingston Branch.

The State Equal Rights Amendment, similar to the pending federal amendment, has been passed twice by the State Legislature and needs the approval of the voters to become part of the New York State Constitution. This controversial amendment is on the ballot for a vote this November. Senator Gold will speak in support of the amendment; Senator Schermerhorn will give arguments against it. The senators will answer questions from the audience after they speak. The AAUW invites the public to hear these two experienced lawmakers discuss the pros and cons of this amendment.

Senator Schermerhorn, Republican-Conservative, was elected in 1970 to represent the 37th Senatorial District that includes Kingston. He is chairman of the Senate Committee on Civil Service and Pensions, and a member of the Senate Committees on Commerce and Economic Development, Health, Insurance and Social Services. He is chairman of the Senate Committee on Civil Service and Pensions, and a member of the Senate Committees on Commerce and Economic Development, Health, Insurance and Social Services. He was also appointed to serve on the Temporary State Commission on Energy Policy.

Senator Schermerhorn has a B.S. degree from Bryant College, Rhode Island. He lives in Cornwall-on-Hudson and is president of Schermerhorn & Smith, Inc., one of the largest insurance agencies in the lower Hudson Valley. He has served as chairman of the Greater Newburgh Area Cancer Fund Drive, and as co-chairman of the Sara Wells Council of Girl Scout Fund Drives, and is a member of the Advisory Council of the Merchants Group of Insurance Companies. In May 1973, Senator Schermerhorn received the first New York State Youth Bureau Award for Distinguished Services for his work in promoting youth activities in New York State.

Senator Emanuel R. Gold, Democrat-Liberal, was elected to the State Senate in 1971 in a Special Election to fill a vacancy. He represents the 13th Senatorial District in Queens County. He served in the Assembly for 18 months before he resigned to run for the State Senate. From 1965 through 1968, he served as Counsel to the Majority Leader of the New York State Assembly, and he has served as assistant counsel to two joint legislative committees. Presently, he is on the State Senate Committees on Civil Service and Pensions, Crime and Correction, Elections, and Finance.

Senator Gold is a graduate of Cornell University School of Arts and Sciences and Cornell Law School. He practices law in New York City. He is a member of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, Queens County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the New York County Lawyers Association, the Queens County Bar Association and the Brandeis Association. He has been a member of the Queens County Democratic Committee since 1962.

Annual Philharmonic Fair Scheduled

Hudson Valley Philharmonic's Ulster Chapter, Mrs. Rosalee Ickes, president, is preparing for the Annual Philharmonic Fair, Oct. 18 and 19, scheduled for indoors at the handsome new Arlington Junior High School, 5 Dutchess Turnpike, Poughkeepsie.

The event will be held from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday and noon until 6 p.m. Sunday.

As usual children will be well entertained with pony rides, a circus, games (in which the Ulster Junior Board will be active), and a continuous series of lively programs in the auditorium. Parents may shop for the holidays at the Art Gallery, the Country Store, the Toy Booth; also among the Attic Treasures, or in Ulster Chapter's own Crafty Peddler Booth, organized and operated by Mrs. Helen Newcombe. Available throughout the Fair will be unique crafts, books, Dutch flower bulbs, plants, bottles, homemade toys, international home-baked foods, and much more. The cafe will serve continuously a variety of delicious homemade foods prepared under skillful direction of Mrs. Janet Deschere.

All Bach Concert at Paltz

The State University College Tuesday Evening Concert Series will continue tonight with the second annual All Bach Concert. The New Paltz Chamber Music Society and College-Community Orchestra will join forces to present three of Bach's most interesting works.

The concert will begin with a performance of the monumental First Suite for Orchestra in C Major. This will be followed by the seldom heard Trio Sonata in G Minor for oboe, viola, and harpsichord. The program will conclude with the famous Concerto in D Minor for two violins and orchestra.

Carole Premezzi will conduct the College-Community Orchestra and perform one of the solo parts in the Concerto in D Minor. Also appearing will be Emily Gallo, associate concertmaster of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic; oboists Virginia Gifford and Kathy Karlson; bassoonist Robert Lewis; violist Lance Premezzi; and harpsichordist Mary Jane Corry.

The concert will begin at 8:30 p.m. and will be presented in McKenna Theatre on the campus of the SUC at New Paltz. The general public as well as the college-community is invited to attend this free program which is being made possible by grants from the Classical Concert Committee and the New York State Council on the Arts.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Ralph Calavecchio, one of a cast of five in "The Bench," turned in a fine performance as Mr. Felnick, a man of habit who wears a suit and tie every day, summer or winter, except Saturday—and who has a gold watch to prove his 40 years of service with the same company.

Nancy Sacks, cast as the irascible Mrs. Zuravel, whose husband threw himself under the wheels of a subway train and who loathes her son's Greenwich Village dancer wife, drew abundant laughs from the audience in a dinner theater presentation at Anzalone's by the Marblatown Artists Association Performers Workshop.

Latest Dinner-Theatre 'One of Most Successful'

By Tobie Geertsema

HIGH FALLS

Free-lance gastronomes, imbued with a thirst for the theater, can be doubly blissful now that dinner-theatre is becoming firmly established in our area. The latest such coupling—and one of the most successful to date—teamed Anzalone's restaurant in High Falls with the Marblatown Artists Association Performers Workshop production of "The Bench."

It was a highly satisfying evening on both the dining and dramatic fronts. Anzalone's made a host of new friends in terms of future customers as a result of the preparation and presentation that went into this special menu. Whether one dined Italian or American, the odyssey through the courses was a pleasant experience.

The stuffed clams were tender, tastily crumbed, and spicy; the lasagna an imaginative dish woven in velvety cheese; the meatballs like Mama used to make. For those who opted for the roast beef, all yearnings were satisfied. It was a princely cutting accompanied by an excellent gravy and flanked by a perfectly baked potato.

Added enticements included an icily frosted fruit cocktail, a salad spiked with tangy dressing, and a superlative dessert cake made the way Mama used to do it in the old country and the way Mama Anzalone still does it today in High Falls—homemade fresh daily and imbued with that delectable sweetness of custards and creams that can be accomplished only with dedication. Diners were also offered their choice of an ample carafe of Chablis, Burgundy or Rose wine.

One would only add that there is an ambience at Anzalone's that is as pleasant and relaxing as one could desire. To the attractiveness of the menu is added the charm of the richly wooded dining room, and the personalized attention given to each individual table by both waitresses and those most amiable hosts, Frank Anzalone and his parents. They carried off their portion of the evening with a professionally friendly touch.

All that remained was the MAA's Performers Workshop to earn equal billing for its share of the night. And where is no question the talented cast did just that.

"The Bench," by Hurley Mountain playwright James Prideaux, emerged as an extremely evocative, one-act drama lodged in witty and gentle insights about life. And the MAA cast was totally attuned to the niceties of its craft, and ablaze with intensity.

The action in "The Bench," and there is virtually none, for this is a mood piece, takes place on a bench in Manhattan's Central Park. And melancholy though it is, it is shot through with Prideaux's rueful humor. As played by Nancy Sack, Larry Klaiman, Mary Lou Richards and Ralph Calavecchio, the dominant characters are four people who stand on the crumbling threshold of old age, all passion spent, memories distant but present, vivid yet garbled.

With quiet desperation, they return day after day, season after season to meet at the same park bench. They chat a lot without ever achieving the closeness of communication they desperately desire. Only when a youthful intruder, played by Barry Ford, forces his way into their bench and into their world does the orchestration of their lives change for a few brief moments.

Sack, Klaiman, Richards and Calavecchio are a beautifully complementary quartet as (respectively) a garrulous, tough-minded old harriidan whose husband has long since committed suicide; an aging gigolo who married money only to be replaced by a younger edition of himself; a sensitive, shy old maid haunted by her sex dreams; and a bachelor pharmaceutical clerk who never rose above that rank in 40 years. All four bring a special and individual artistry to their roles. Young Ford, who first appears as a penniless vagrant and later returns as a millionaire pop musician and movie star, is brashly engaging.

Prideaux has written a subtle play that delves into troubled introspective psyches, and the Marblatown Artists cast added something additionally haunting in the sum total of their individual parts. The rewards of spending an evening with Anzalone's and The Performers Workshop were gratifying.

Seeger Concert To Benefit Sloop

Pete Seeger will perform a benefit concert for the Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc. (HRSR) at Kline Commons, Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

HRSR needs funds for the reconstruction of the Clearwater, the 106 foot sloop which has sailed the Hudson River for several seasons in HRSR's fight for restoration and protection of the river's natural resources. More than 6,000 students have studied biology, conservation, river history, and sailcraft on board the Clearwater as part of a unique environmental and nautical education program.

Extensive rot in the bow, transom, cabin sides, hold hatch, as well as some in the mast may prevent the Clearwater from sailing next season unless sufficient funds are raised for reconstruction during the winter months. $8,500 a month for four months will be required to complete work scheduled to be done in Stonington, Maine, under the direction of Maynard Bray.

The Clearwater and the Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc., were born from an idea of Pete Seeger nurtured with the help of innumerable people looking to realize a clean river. The Clearwater is not only a tool for education more private citizens to their part in the process, it is also a symbol of those who already worked together to carry its message.

Pete Seeger has been a major influence in the popularity of folk music in America since the 1940's. His infectious voice and versatile guitar have long been associated with the development of folk song clubs and the playing of folk music in night clubs, on radio and on television.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and my boyfriend is 18. We've been going steady for two years and ope to marry some day.

Here's the problem: I used to take birth control pills, but my boyfriend made me stop because he said he heard they could cause blood clots, make my hair fall out and cause lots of other terrible side effects.

We want children some day, and now I am worried that there is something wrong with me and that if I ever do have a child, it will be deformed.

I am terribly worried about myself, Abby. Please help me. I have no mother to ask, and I don't know any doctors.

WORRIED IN PA.

DEAR WORRIED: You need professional counseling. If your school offers that service, please take advantage of it. If not, our local Planned Parenthood office can help you. You may be worrying needlessly, but it's important that you learn the facts.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a wonderful woman for nearly two years. We get along very well, but I have one complaint. The only night she lets me make love to her is Thursday because she gets her hair done every Friday.

Any suggestions?

Streaking Kingston High Shows Plenty of Hart

WAPPINGERS FALLS
Only two weeks ago today, Kingston High School's varsity football team was 0-2 and coming off a horrendous loss to John Jay. Now, a mere 14 days later, the Tigers have leveled their record at 2-2 and some people are going so far as to spread title talk around town.

"The Jay game definitely turned our season around," KHS coach Tony Badalato said Monday after his club rode the kicking toe of Jerry Hart to a 9-7 victory over winless Ketcham. "Since that game the kids are more aggressive and they're making fewer mistakes. They're starting to play football."

Long before KHS had taken the field for its rain-delayed game with Ketcham, Badalato had given an indication of what was to come when he predicted "we could see a field goal. We feel we have a reliable kicker."

Deep into the fourth quarter, with Kingston trailing the home team by a point, Hart, who does nothing but kick for the Tigers, showed why he deserved the reliability tag. He bombed a field goal through the uprights from the 18 yard line (that's a 28 yard boot) and KHS held on from there to post its second straight victory.

As was the case when Kingston had to sweat it out to beat Roosevelt, the Tigers' win

Monday didn't come easy, even though KHS scored first and dominated most of the statistics. The failure to score a second touchdown late in the first half came back to haunt the Tigers as Ketcham revived itself in the third period to tie the score, then grab a 7-6 lead on a PAT boot by Rich Contelmo.

But Kingston had the stuff to come back.

Taking the Ketcham kickoff just before the fourth quarter started, Kingston began its winning drive from good field position on its own 40. Bruce Churchwell crashed for two first downs, the second one coming on a crucial fourth down-short yardage situation. Quarterback Joe Kivlan, who shared the signal calling duties with Bruce Schnackenberg, came up with another key play when he fired complete to John Browning on third down for a 25 yard pickup that brought the ball to the Indians' 13 yard line.

When Ketcham stiffened to force the Tigers into a fourth and one, Hart trotted out to kick the game-winner.

Kingston was still not out of danger considering more than four minutes remained for Ketcham's fine passer, Scott

Dick, to move his team. After one harmless exchange of possession, however, Mike Meyer came up with an interception that crushed the Indians' chances.

Kingston scored the first time it got the ball, driving 70 yards in 17 plays, all on the ground. Churchwell, Joe Etter and Ricky Knox did the bulk of the work with Churchwell slamming in from the one for the TD. Hart's try at an extra point was blocked.

With John Falatyn leading an impressive defense, the losers gained very little. Even a fumble that gave Ketcham possession on the Kingston 26 proved worthless as the Tiger defenders stopped the Indians five yards away from a score.

Kingston took over at that point and drove nearly the length of the field on another impressive drive, but it stalled just as the half ran out. The play that hurt was an impromptu lateral from Churchwell after the Tiger back had already powered in to the four yard line. Schnackenberg wasn't expecting the flip, and the play lost five yards

When Ketcham asserted itself with a 95 yard scoring drive that consumed almost the entire third quarter, that missed TD opportunity loomed big. Hart, though, kicked the fears away, enabled the Tigers to level their record at 2-2, and dropped RCK to 0-2-1 on the season.

The stats:

KHS	First Downs	RCK
16	7	7
188	Passing Yardage	118
34	Passes	1-11
1	Passes Intercepted by	0
40	Fumbles Lost	0
230	Yards Penalized	20
	Punts	3-30

Scores by Quarters

Kingston	1	2	3	4	Total
Ketcham	0	0	7	0	7

The scoring:
KHS Churchwell, 1 yd run (Kick blocked)
RCK DeVitt, 4 yd run (Contelmo Kick)
KHS Hart, 18 yd field goal

SPORTS TODAY

It's Nolan vs. Wise

Comeback Hurlers Meet in Game Three

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Gary Nolan and Rick Wise, a pair of comeback right-handers whose pitching careers teetered on the brink of baseball's scrap pile only a year ago, draw "gratifying" starting assignments tonight when the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox meet to break a one-game apiece deadlock in game three of the 1975 World Series.

Nolan, given up for lost by his manager and Cincinnati Reds teammates after two seasons of virtually no activity because of a mysterious bone spur in his pitching shoulder, earned his starting nod by putting together a 15-9 record and a 3.16 earned run average as the National League's surprise pitcher of 1975.

Wise, a bespectacled ex-National Leaguer, who missed nearly the entire 1974 season after coming over to the Red Sox in a key off-season trade, played a major role in Boston's '75 pennant drive by winning 19 games against 12 losses.

"I'd be lying if I told you we were counting on Gary Nolan this year," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "When we went to spring training in February, he wasn't even listed on my 12-man pitching prospectus. I just didn't want the team to feel we could count on him."

The Nolan comeback is, of course, one of baseball's most heartwarming stories of 1975. Stricken by a mysterious shoulder pain when he attempted to throw out the late Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates on a routine grounder to the mound in 1972, Nolan could not convince anyone he was really seriously handicapped.

Only after the famed Los Angeles career-saving athletic surgeon, Dr. Robert Kerlan, operated on the arm, was the bone spur discovered, and it still took years of alternated rest and rehabilitation for Nolan to make it all the way back this past spring.

"There was a time," said Nolan, "back in 1974 when I really began to think the cards were against my having a long career. I wasn't to the point where I was beating my kids, but it was hard to joke around like I do knowing the joke was on me. It had been so long since I had gotten anybody out, I began to question whether I could do it mentally as well as physically."

"You have no idea what it is to be out of baseball for two years and not know if you can ever throw strikes again. Pitching this World Series is naturally very gratifying to me."

Similiary, Wise, who threw his shoulder out pitching on a cold and rainy April day early in the 1974 season, had his doubts about making it all the way back.

"I had never had an injury to my arm in my 10 years in the majors," Wise said, "and there's always that prospect running through your head that you're never going to play again. Until you do it between the two lines, it's there."

Although one of the two comeback sagas will be curtailed, at least temporarily, Wise feels he himself can provide the underdog Red Sox a couple of bonus assets.

For one, his two best-pitched games came in Riverfront Stadium—a no-hitter against the Reds in 1971 and a one-hitter two years later. And second, although idled two years by the American League's designated hitter rule, Wise still considers himself one of the best hitting pitchers in baseball.

"The first thing I wanted to do when we had our warmup here," Wise said, "was to grab a bat and see what it feels like. I really miss hitting because I feel I always had an advantage with my ability to hit."

Wise has hit 15 homers in his career, but his primary concern today will be to keep the menacing Cincinnati "go-go gang" off the bases. The switch from the rain-slowed natural grass and dirt of Fenway Park to the speed-oriented artificial surface of Riverfront Stadium has restored the Reds' confidence of running the Red Sox out of town—just like they did to the Pirates in the NL playoffs.

"If they (the Red Sox) play as close defensively in the outfield here as they did at Boston, we're gonna see a lot of numbers on the board," said Joe Morgan, the Reds' most dangerous base-stealing threat who was thrown out by Boston catcher Carlton Fisk in his only attempt to steal at Fenway.

"Playing on a field with no mud on the basepaths will make things much different for me. I think playing on AstroTurf puts more of a premium on speed and quickness."

In the only American League ballpark completely surfaced artificially—Kansas City's Royals stadium—the Red Sox were 4-2 this year. But, Fisk admits, the switch from real grass has caused problems in the past.

"Everytime we came out of Kansas City this year," Fisk said, "we felt we'd been in a football game. Everybody's legs were sore and their backs were sore. The infielders and outfielders know they have to play deeper."

In an effort to maximize his team's most potent asset, Anderson has juggled his lineup a bit—moving Ken Griffey, one of his fastest players, from seventh to the number two spot, while dropping Morgan to third.

"It gives us more speed at the top of the order," Anderson said. "With Pete (Rose) leading off, you cannot double up Griffey on a routine grounder. Then you're gonna have a man on first with Morgan up. That sets the stage to force them to go against the book."

"You have to be aware of Griffey's stealing and the pitchers had better be throwing fastballs or they're in trouble."

The Reds, who won 108 games this year—most in the National League in over 50 years—managed 64 of them at home plus the two playoff wins against the Pirates. That .771 Reds winning percentage at home could make Sunday's ninth inning 3-2 loss to Cincinnati loom even larger for the Red Sox in these next three games at Riverfront.

Sawyers, JJ Going Opposite Ways

WICCOPEE
Monday's makeup football game here was one in which visiting Saugerties High was finally supposed to assert itself. It was also supposed to be one in which John Jay would show the effects of a two week layoff. Neither happened.

A 27 point onslaught in the second period opened the gates to a 40-14 John Jay triumph and kept the Sawyers winless in five starts this year.

That quarter destroyed the Sawyers as the Patriots capitalized on a couple of fumbles to keep the points coming. A loose ball on the Saugerties 12 yard line was recovered by John Jay's Ron Kampa and soon turned into the winners' second TD.

When the Sawyers were trying to fight back from a 21-0 deficit and managed to get well across midfield, another fumble squirted loose. Anthony Chirico of the Pats' pounced on this one, and John Jay had yet another score minutes later.

The hole just became too deep, and the Patriots' ability to break the big play made it worse. Jay Ennesser, who passed six yards to Wayne Gantt for the opening TD in the first quarter, threw a 46 yard completion to Pete Viola to set up TD No. 5. Lou Bosch, who rushed for 118 yards on the day, shook loose on a draw play for 28 yards that led to TD No. 3. TD No. 6 was a screen pass from Rick Stackrow to Corky Macek, and that covered 83 yards.

The Sawyers are now a disappointing 0-3-1 on the season. They'll host Roosevelt Saturday, Jay, 2-1, visits Beacon.

Slow Start for U.S. Team at Pan Ams

LUIS HERNANDEZ OF MEXICO . . . 10,000 meter run champ

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The United States, off to a less than spectacular start in the Pan American Games, can only hope the on-target performance of its marksmen begins to rub off on its track and field team.

The Americans were embarrassingly lacking in track and field gold medals—none out of three chances to be precise—one day deep into the second largest international sports competition in the world.

"I'm pretty far down," said a dejected Al Lanier, who had to be content with a bronze medal in the long jump. "I guess I just over-trained. I was jumping good enough to win two days ago."

Lanier's feelings set the tone of the bleak afternoon, which finally gave way to rain late in the day. But the voice of sprinter Bill Collins, who will run in today's 100-meter dash finals, showed the Americans' determination to make a comeback.

"They say the Cuban, Silvio Leonard, is the man to beat," Collins said. "But I don't think so. He can't run me down."

The opening day of sport saw a continuation in the not-so-friendly feud between the U.S. and Cuba.

United States athletes took verbal abuse from Cubans during the day at the track and then Cuba added injury to insult by downing the Americans in a thrilling volleyball contest Monday night.

And the Cuban pair of Carmen Romero and Maria Betancourt took first and second in the women's discus, Miss Romero's gold medal effort being a 197-4.

If it had not been for the shooting team, which won three out of a possible four gold medals, the first day of the Games would have been a disastrous one for the U.S.

But America did gain some revenge with Allen Coage of Orange, N.J., whipping Cuba's Jose Ibanez in judo super heavyweight finals match.

Coage's win, along with firsts garnered by Hershah Anderson of Columbus, Ga., in the free pistol event and team medals in the free pistol and air rifle competition, gave the U.S. four golds and a total of nine medals while Cuba had won five golds and 10 overall.

Three of Cuba's gold medals were won by the same man—Francisco Capamayor—who captured the clean and jerk, snatch and overall titles in the flyweight weightlifting division.

America's basketball team, which has slumped on the international level for the past four years, opened with a 103-62 win over Argentina. The U.S. baseball team, however, had its scheduled game with the Dominican Republic rained out.

The biggest disappointment of all came at the almost empty University Stadium, where Garry Bjorklund failed to win a medal in the 10,000 meters and the potent long jump duo of Arnie Robinson and Lanier had to settle for a silver and bronze behind winner Joao Oliveira of Brazil, who captured the event with a leap of 26-3/4.

U.S. coaches had hoped to win both events. But there will be ample chance to recoup today with six gold medals being awarded in track and field. Fourteen other final events will be held today in fencing, judo, shooting and weightlifting.

In addition to the 100 meters, where Collins says he can handle the speedy Leonard, America has a chance to win gold in the women's 100.

"It will be a 1-2 knockout for us," said Pamela Jiles of New Orleans, who will be in the finals along with Renaye Bowen of Los Angeles.

Terry Albritton of Newport Beach, Calif., and Jesse Stuart of Glasgow, Ken., are a logical 1-2 choice in the shot put and James King of San Diego is the favorite in the 400-meter hurdles despite a slightly pulled groin muscle.

America's chance are slim of picking up gold in the women's long jump and 3,000-meter steeplechase.

While there was dejection in the American camp, there was joy on the Mexican team.

Luis Hernandez and Rudolfo Gomez, who had taken the Pan American Games oath during opening ceremonies Sunday, outlasted Domingo Tibaduiza of Colombia and Bjorklund to sweep the first two places in the 10,000 meters.

With the small crowd yelling them on, and with one particularly frantic gentleman beating a huge drum for emphasis, Hernandez turned in a 80.2 final 400 meters to defeat his countryman by 10 meters.

Former heavyweight champion George Foreman (L) waves a tiny American flag, just as he did back in October of 1968 when he won the Olympic heavyweight championship and a gold medal in Mexico City. Occasion was the announcement Monday that Foreman will begin his comeback with a bout against Ron Lyle of Denver, Colo. The bout will be held at an undetermined site at a date to be announced later. On right is former football star Jimmy Brown who is a special promotion aide to Foreman. (UPI)

Allen Gambled, Won

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Allen, a man of caution, gambled on a rookie and a fake field goal and his Washington Redskins raked in a three-touchdown jackpot worth a 27-17 nationally televised victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night.

Mike Thomas, a fifth round draft choice, was used by Allen, who prefers veterans, and responded with 100 yards rushing and two touchdowns in less than three quarters of action.

In the third period with the score tied 10-10, Allen decided to forego a Mark Moseley field goal effort from the 37 and the result was a 30-yard touchdown pass from holder Joe Theismann to John Pergine, a reserve linebacker who goes in as a blocking end for the kicking unit.

"We caught them with their pants down," Theismann, relegated to third string quarterback duty, said. "I thought about running but John got so open."

Theismann recalled scrambling as a freshman against Pergine, then a senior, when both were at Notre Dame.

"He used to rack me up pretty good," he said, "but I made a hero out of him tonight."

Pergine said it was the first pass he ever caught in either college or the pro ranks.

"It caught us completely by surprise," St. Louis Coach Don Coryell admitted.

The victory kept the Redskins, 3-1, one step away from the undefeated Dallas Cowboys in the battle for divisional honors and dropped the Cards two games behind.

Thomas scored a second and game deciding touchdown in the final quarter after St. Louis had rebounded to tie again at 17-17. He told of talking with his brother, Earl, a star receiver with St. Louis, prior to the kickoff and related. "He told me, well little brother, we both are in the pros now. I hope you play well but we're going to whip you."

It didn't happen that way.

Day of Decision for WFL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The jury deciding the fate of the World Football League was still out Monday with a possible verdict expected to be delivered late today as to whether the two-year old league will live or die.

The WFL, beset by financial difficulties and steadily dwindling attendances, continued to fight for its life as the Board of Governors met in an all-day session attempting to stave off the league's demise. It was expected that a decision would be reached one way or the other today on the league's future.

The three alternatives being proposed include:

1. To continue with the present 10-team format with the stronger franchises subsidizing the weaker ones. Last week $300,000 was assessed from the more successful league members in order to keep Portland and Philadelphia operating.
2. To eliminate the league's weaker teams, the Portland Thunder and the Philadelphia Bell, both of which have had limited success at the gate.
3. Cease operation of the league.

"We are attempting to make the WFL go," said WFL President Chris Hemminger. "We are staying away from the ultimate negative possibility of it going down the tube and we are exploring all directions to save the league."

Surgery for Parent

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Flyers star goalie Bernie Parent was scheduled to undergo surgery today to remove disc fragments pressing against a nerve in his neck.

Team physician Dr. John Wolf said he consulted with four other doctors Monday night to determine if Parent needed surgery. Flyers' Chairman Ed Snyder and General Manager Keith Allen and Parent's wife, Carol, attended the meeting.

Dr. Wolf said Parent would undergo surgery at 8 a.m. at Abington Hospital where he has been in traction for a week.

The goaltender was expected to remain out of action for a minimum of four weeks.

Titans, Agenas, Mercury Score

KINGSTON Pete Rundle, Bob Tegar, and Brian Timbrouck were the stars as the Titans, Agenas, and Mercury teams won Exchange Club Junior Football League games over the weekend.

Rundle scored a touchdown and two conversion points to power the Titans to a 26-7 victory over the Saturns; Tegar took a pair of passes from Vince Mayone for TDs as the Agenas were whitewashed the Atlas club, 26-0; and Timbrouck ran 50 yards from scrimmage for a touchdown on the game's first play and later threw a TD pass and ran in a conversion as Mercury zipped the Apollos, 26-0.

The Titans took a 14-0 lead over the Saturns as Glen Eckhoff scored on a six yard run and Joe Sweeney connected with Brian McCullough for a 35-yard passing strike. Rundle made both conversions, the first on a pass from Sweeney, the second on a run.

A double reverse with Brian McCordle galloping 16 yards for the score, followed by Laughlin's run for the extra point put the Saturns back in the game at halftime, but the Titans scored twice in the second half to win. A two-yard run by Sweeney and a one yard run by Rundle were the decisive touchdowns for the winners.

The Agenas had an easy time against the Atlas. Pat McGowan's one yard run and Don Eaton's PAT made it 7-0 in the first quarter. Then the winners poured it on in the second period as Mayone threw a six-yard option pass to Tegar for one TD and a 10-yard throw to Tegar for another. David Casavant's conversion made it 20-0. Rick Grossman scored from a yard out for the final touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Timbrouck's 50 yard run on the first play of the game took some early starch out of the Apollos. But the winners couldn't score again until the fourth quarter when Tom Morgan intercepted a pass and ran it 25 yards for a back-breaking TD. A 20 yard pass from Jeff Halstead to Kevin Reynolds and another 20 yarder, this one from Timbrouck to Frank Mitchell cinched matters.

Jerry Trezza. Then a funny thing happened to the Panthers. They played Highland Monday.

And then there were two. Two points on Highland's side of the scoreboard; two teams tied for the UCAL's first place.

A safety in the second quarter, the only points in the ballgame, leveled both teams off with 4-1 records.

A 2-0 score sounds strange, but it typified the kind of contest Highland and Wallkill played. It was defense all the way with the Big Blue defense just that much better.

The points came in the second quarter with Wallkill buried on its own two yard line facing a third-and-17 situation. Panther quarterback Harry Collier called a counter to halfback Dan Inzell, but Kevin Monahan led a Big Blue charge that smeared Inzell in the end zone.

"I think our offensive line was on vacation," said Traza afterwards. "Our pulling guard got knocked back right into the quarterback, and they just piled in on us."

The safety really rubbed it in because the Highland defense held the highly touted Wallkill attack to a grand total of 52 yards. Collier had time to get off a dozen passes, but excellent work by the Big Blue secondary held him to one completion. The few times the Panthers did get moving, a penalty called them back.

Wallkill's defense made a game of it with some good work of its own. Highland managed to move somewhat, gaining 129 yards on the ground and another 66 through the air, but the Panther resistance kept the winners from a touchdown. That wasn't easy because a couple of times turnovers provided the Blue with good field position.

OSU Margin Narrowing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State continued to be the overwhelming choice of the UPI Board of Coaches with 34 first place votes of the 42 cast but second ranked Oklahoma narrowed the gap somewhat with their hard-fought victory over arch-rival Texas.

The Buckeyes rolled over winless Iowa, 49-0, Saturday to improve their season mark to 5-0. Despite their impressive victory over the Hawkeyes, Ohio State lost three of its 37 first place votes a week ago to Oklahoma after the Sooners defeated Texas, 24-17, in a brutalizing game.

Ohio State dominated the UPI poll with a total of 413 points, followed by Oklahoma with five first place votes and 372 points.

Except for the slight reshuffling among the bottom teams, the top 10 remained virtually as it was last week.

Southern California, with two first-place votes, again was third and Nebraska again was fourth. Texas A&M, which picked up the other first-place vote, climbed from sixth to fifth.

Alabama continued its climb back among the leaders, after losing its season opener to Missouri, and moved up a notch from last week to sixth. Michigan and Penn State also moved up one spot to seventh and eighth, respectively.

Texas, which was fifth last week, dropped to ninth. Missouri, which made the biggest gain of the week, jumped from 18th to 10th after demolishing last week's 10th-rated team, Oklahoma State, 41-14.

Follow the Leader

New Paltz, Red Hook: It Could Only Be a Tie

NEW PALTZ Put the league's best offense up against the league's best defense, and what do you get? A tie. A 13-13 deadlock like the one New Paltz High and Red Hook High struggled to here Monday in a game delayed two days by a wet field.

The Hughes' offense, one that leads the Ulster County Athletic League in just about everything, owned the ball for the first two periods, put a pair of TD's on the board, and led 13-0 at halftime. The Raiders defense, however, yielded no more points after that, and its offense came up with two scores of its own in the third quarter to even up the contest.

Each squad had a chance to break the tie in the final period, but in both cases a penalty thwarted the efforts. New Paltz penetrated inside the Red Hook 20 to threaten first before an infraction pushed it out of range. The Raiders took over and moved inside the Huguenot 30, but a 15-yarder stopped things there.

Jerry Marks got the game's first TD with a 24 yard dash that capped a 67 yard, 10 play drive. After he blasted off tackle for the score, Russ Titsch booted New Paltz to a 7-0 lead.

That came in the first period, but the Hughes weren't finished. A good punt return by Mike Beck enabled them to start another march, this time from the 50. Beck carried the last four yards for the second score, but he failed on the option play to add the conversion points. There were still almost eight minutes left in the half, and the Hughes were looking good.

The Raiders, though, hadn't begun to fight. They got their running game in gear in the third period with Tim Moul streaking 24 yards on a reverse to set up the visitors' first touchdown. Moul carried it in from the ten, and even though Barry Reddick's extra point attempt was blocked, the big Raider kicker made his second chance count. That came only four minutes later after Red Hook took over on a short Hegie punt.

Bruce Rhodes lugged it in from the eight yard line for Red Hook's second touchdown.

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — New England linebacker Ron Shoate broke his right leg in the third period with Tim Moul streaking 24 yards on a reverse to set up the visitors' first touchdown. # KHS Kickers Outlast Saugerties, 4-2

SAUGERTIES
Saugerties High School's soccer team literally knocked the goal posts down here Monday but Kingston High's team managed to find the nets more often and came away with an exciting overtime 4-2 victory over their Ulster County DCSL rivals.

The game had a little something for everyone, including two Saugerties leads and two Kingston comebacks. And it even had the two teams and hundreds of fans moving from one field to another when a Sawyer player demolished the posts after KHS had tied the score late in the second half. "It was a rough one," sighed

Saugerties coach Tony Elia. "After they scored their second goal, one of our players hit the post and knocked it down. We had to move to the JV field which is still regulation but a little smaller. Kingston just got it together near the end."

"We were lucky to win," Ron Chaisson, the KHS coach, admitted. "We came out flat and Saugerties constantly beat us to the ball. For some reason we weren't up for the game. But I'll tell you something, I have a lot of respect for that Saugerties team. They played a great game. I'm surprised their record isn't better than it is and I'm sure they're going to win some more games this year."

The back-breaking goal for Saugerties came with just three and half minutes left in regulation as Steve Sterling led Eric TimBrooke perfectly and he booted one past Sawyer goalie J.J. Fitzpatrick. TimBrooke earlier had scored Kingston's first goal in the first half. Both of his markers negated Saugerties tallies by Mark Nezhich.

When the clubs switched to the JV field, Saugerties hung on well enough to send the game into overtime. But Emil Jordan, with TimBrooke assisting, scored the winner just one minute into the extra session and at 3:30 the duo combined again to put the game on ice.

"TimBrooke was super, the day was his," Chaisson said of the native of Holland. "Danny Perkins, our sweeper back, played by far his best game and of course Emil had those two goals in overtime."

Chaisson reasoned that the move to the smaller field actually hurt his club. "I have more depth than Tony does and I think by the end of the game we were fresher. Their kids were tired. When we had to move, it not only put the game on a smaller field, it gave them a little rest. But after they had almost beaten us and we tied it late in the second half, I think that took a lot out of them. They didn't have a shot on goal in overtime."

KHS has now won five games in a row and is 4-3 in the DCSL. It goes to Webutuck Wednesday. The Sawyers, 1-6, will host powerful Arlington the same day.

The stats:

Kingston..... 1 1 2 0-4
Saugerties..... 1 1 0 0-2
The scoring:
FIRST—SIS Mark Nezhich, 4:00; KHS—Eric TimBrooke (penalty kick), 20:00.
SECOND—SIS Mark Nezhich, 16:00; KHS—Eric TimBrooke (Steve Sterling), 31:30.
OT—KHS Emil Jordan (TimBrooke), 1:00; KHS Emil Jordan (TimBrooke), 3:30.
Shots on goal—Kingston 28, Saugerties 8; Corner kicks, Kingston 8, Saugerties 2; Saves, Kingston (Colvin) 5, Saugerties (Fitzpatrick) 14.

Same Old Story as UCCC Ties NYCC

STONE RIDGE
For the soccer Senators of Ulster County Community College, Monday's battle with visiting New York City CC was an improvement over last year's meeting with the Bees—they didn't lose. But as far as this year's season goes, it was more of the same, old stuff for UCCC.

"We shoot and we hustle, but the finish isn't there," said UCCC coach George Vizvary after his squad had struggled to a 1-1 deadlock. It was the third game in which the Senators had outshot an opponent by a wide margin, but the record they show for it is 1-0-2.

New York, which took only five shots on goal during the game to Ulster's 25, actually scored first in the contest. Ulster didn't manage to draw even until much of the second half had ticked off.

Two ten minute overtimes failed to resolve the contest, they only presented the Senators with more unused opportunities. Segundo Zapater, who is playing exceptional soccer for UCCC of late, had one golden chance to win the game in the first overtime, but after driving to a one-on-one setup against the Bees' goalie Luigi Berinato, the Ulster forward miskicked the ball.

Len Ociste took advantage of a large height advantage he enjoyed over Ulster's Rich Derella to score the first goal of the game at 20:50 of the first half. A New York corner kick started the play, and Ociste just jumped over Derella and headed it into the net.

A handball gave Ulster's Tom Mulroy a penalty kick in the second Half. Mulroy eats them up, and he pounded this one by Berinato for the equalizer.

Vizvary praised Berinato's work in the net, but he wasn't down on his own squad for failing to pull out the win. "There is nothing to worry about, we are going to be strong," the coach said. "Our freshmen are coming, and we have confidence in our defense," he continued.

Ulster goes to Mid Hudson Conference opponent Rockland CC today.

The stats:

New York City CC..... 1 0 0 0-1
Ulster CCC..... 0 1 0 0-1
The scoring:
FIRST—NYCCC—Len Ociste (Craig), 20:50.
SECOND—UCCC—Tom Mulroy (penalty kick), 27:34.

Marist Boots New Paltz State

POUGHKEEPSIE
Marist College used a break-away offense and the fine ball handling of the Naizta brothers, Zenone and Fermino, to hand visiting New Paltz State a 3-1 soccer defeat Monday and stretch its unbeaten string to six straight.

Zenone assisted on one goal and scored another, and Fermino added an unassisted shot to give the Red Foxes a 3-0 lead. The Hawks came back with a late tally by Ron Elie.

"They outplayed us, but it could just have easily been a 3-1 game the other way," said New Paltz coach Bob Joly.

"We controlled the midfield, and I don't say that from the point of view of a prejudiced coach. They just had those breakaways, and their inside men, the Naizta brothers, are both just excellent."

The first Marist breakaway came only 4:15 into the contest. Zenone took control and fed teammate John McGraw who booted one past Hawk keeper Soodak Jan. Zenone made it 2-0 at the half when he took another break in himself, scoring at the 42 minute mark.

Outshot 11-8 in the first half, New Paltz came back strongly for the rest of the contest and wound up with an 18-16 advantage in shots. The Hawks just couldn't capitalize, however, as Steve Rockwell led a tough Marist defense.

Fermino scored unassisted at 2:50 of the second half to give the home squad an insurmountable lead.

Elie got the Hawks on the scoreboard at 43:07 of the period, putting across from Dave Eckwall into the Foxes' net. The closest the Hawks could come other than that score was to rattle a couple of shots off the goalposts.

Joly praised fullbacks Moses Omieri and Charles Ogalo. Omieri kept his position under control and came up with numerous steals. Ogalo also performed well despite being hindered with lingering injuries.

New Paltz is now 4-4 for the season.

The stats:

New Paltz..... 0 1 1
Marist..... 2 1 1
The scoring:
FIRST—M—John McGraw (Z. Naizta), 4:15; M—Zenone Naizta, 42:00.
SECOND—M—Fermino Naizta, 2:50.
NP—Ron Elie (Eckwall), 43:07.
Shots on goal: NP 18, Marist 16; Corner kicks: NP 8, Marist 7; Saves: NP 10, Marist 12.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Despite your desire to keep to yourself today, you will become overly involved with people. Things won't work out the way you hoped they would.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll leave a host of details go till the last minute. Some important things will be neglected. Hopefully, you'll please some, but others will be disappointed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you'll leave a host of details go till the last minute. Some important things will be neglected. Hopefully, you'll learn a lesson.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your patience with the family leaves a great deal to be desired today. Minor infractions could easily be blown out of proportion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll try to be like a chameleon today and adapt to the whims of the crowd you're with. Things won't turn out all that well for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you start something today stick with it, or business and personal affairs will get so complicated you'll be chasing your own tail.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're far too indecisive today. If you don't make up your mind, you'll not only bug those you're with, but even yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Slow down a bit today. Nothing you have to do is that urgent that you have to put a strain on your nerves or disturb your peace of mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Mind your P's and Q's socially today. There are people you could turn off if you persist in acting like a bull in the china shop.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Steer clear of anything involving a high degree of mental skill today. Your powers of concentration are not up to your usual standards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is a day when your financial blessings are a mixed bag. You could show a tidy profit, but it is highly unlikely you'll be prudent enough to do so.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are a good starter today, but a lousy finisher. Don't put so many irons in the fire you can't pull them out without getting singed.

Your Birthday

Oct. 15, 1975

The coming year will be a profitable one if you're not afraid to take on added responsibilities. Those who give you more work will also be ready to increase your rewards.

Win At Bridge

He Saves Trumps for Later

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Many of the hands from the 'Return of Sherlock Holmes—Bridge Detective' are old timers of the type known as "Book" hands. That doesn't stop them from being interesting. In today's hand Sherlock Holmes sits East and Scurry, his foil, is South. We hold no brief for Scurry's bidding except that it got him to a spot where unusual defense by Holmes was necessary for the defeat of the contract.

West started out with three rounds of clubs. Almost anyone would ruff that third club automatically. Then irrespective of what East returned South would get to dummy twice with diamonds to finesse twice against East's king-10-nine. The defense would wind up with three tricks they had started with and no more.

Holmes didn't ruff. Instead he made the apparently insane play of discarding a diamond.

South was in. He led a diamond to dummy, finessed once in trumps, noted the 4-0 break, but could do no better than lead a second diamond. Holmes ruffed this, got out with a spade and waited happily for his second trump trick.

Sound of Music Returns to NYC

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Great White Way looked like the Broadway of song and legend for the first time in nearly a month Monday night with the return of Broadway musicals shut down by a musicians' strike.

Box offices reported a brisk business — both in sales and ticket exchanges — as curtains went up on "A Chorus Line," "Pippin," "Shenandoah," and "Chicago," four of the dozen shows darkened by the 25-day walkout.

Four other productions — "Candide," "Raisin," "The Wiz," and "Grease" — were to reopen tonight and "The Magic Show" was slated to return Wednesday.

"The first night back is very special and we're all anxious to do it again," said Allen Herman, a drummer in "A Chorus Line."

Tickets also were on sale for two new productions, Scott Joplin's "Treemonisha," scheduled to debut Wednesday, and "Boccaccio," which will go back into preview this week. The "Paul Anka Show" was canceled.

"It's going to be rough for a while because we lost our continuity," said Louis Appel, treasurer of the Alvin Theatre, where "Shenandoah" was playing. "But all things considered, we're doing pretty well."

Gerald Schoenfeld, chief negotiator in the dispute for the League of New York Theaters and Producers, agreed the theaters would have a long way to go to shake off the effects of the strike.

Gov. Wallace Heads for Belgium Visit

LONDON (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace drew to the end of a two-day visit to Britain today, saying the American middle class is fed up with big government and high taxes.

The governor, flying to Belgium tonight, opened his two-week European tour by presenting himself as the guardian of America's middle class.

"We have hundreds of thousands of civil servants telling people how to run their unions, how to run their businesses and their children, and the American people, especially the middle class, are fed up," he said.

He made his comments to British television Monday on the first day of a 50,000-mile trip apparently aimed at picking up international credentials for his unofficial campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Wallace's theme of protecting the middle class is similar to the position of Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, the British Conservative party leader meeting him today.

Wallace, confined to a wheelchair, appeared to withstand the rigors of being led around London — surrounded by secret service men — during his tight schedule of meetings.

"My health is all right," he said. "Not a thing wrong with me except that I am paralyzed."

He said paralysis had not hindered the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt's political career.

On Monday, Wallace met with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson at 10 Downing Street, where they discussed Anglo-American relations and the defense of Western Europe.

He was driven to the meeting by Ambassador Elliot Richardson, who briefed him for an hour on British and European political and economic developments.

Wallace said the middle class is the bedrock of American institutions and "in my judgement is going to be something that is necessary for the entire free world."

He said bureaucracy "becomes bigger than the government itself."

Asked by reporters to comment on detente, the governor said the Soviets have come out ahead. He said detente is "a high-faluting word that means getting together."

"If you want my opinion, the Russians have out-detented us," he said.

Wallace was guarded about his presidential ambitions, but said, "The chances are that I will become more involved than I will not." He ruled out running as a vice presidential candidate.

Ford Studying Report on Marijuana De-Emphasis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is studying a White House task force report recommending de-emphasis of marijuana in federal efforts against drug abuse.

It may be made public this week, says a White House spokesman, who denied an allegation the report was withheld so far because of the admission last week by the President's son, Jack, that he has smoked pot.

The report of the White House Domestic Council Drug Review Task Force said drug abuse costs the nation up to $17 billion a year and may be an insoluble problem.

It said instead of aiming at marijuana, federal law enforcement and treatment efforts should be directed more toward such drugs as heroin, amphetamines and mixed barbiturates, which "pose a greater risk to the individual and to society."

Ford asked the task force last spring to make a "frank appraisal" of drug abuse in America.

The report was reviewed last week by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, and a source close to the government's anti-drug efforts said release of the report was held up in part because of Jack Ford's revelation that he used marijuana.

But Hushen said Monday "that's just wrong." He said the report probably would be released this week and has been making its way normally through channels.

Although the report's proposed de-emphasis of marijuana has been publicized, the full report has not been publicly available. A copy was obtained by UPI from a congressional office.

One of the report's major conclusions is that national drug abuse problems may never go away. "Therefore, we must be prepared to continue our efforts and our commitments indefinitely, in order to contain the problem at a minimal level, and in order to minimize the adverse social cost of drug abuse."

The money cost of drug-related theft, health care and lost productivity are estimated at $10 billion to $17 billion a year.

The report does not cover two of the most abused drugs in America, alcohol and nicotine, because they are "legally obtainable and socially acceptable" drugs treated differently by public and social policy, the report said.

Among the reports findings: — Marijuana is the "most widely used illicit drug" in the country.

— The heroin situation is "ominous."

— Chronic, medically unsupervised use of amphetamines and barbiturates "probably ranks with heroin use as a major social problem."

— Cocaine is the new "in" drug.

— Use of LSD and other hallucinogens may still be as frequent as in recent years but there has been a definite decline in the number of hallucinogen-related medical problems.

— Surveys indicate about 7 percent of junior and senior high school students may have inhaled chemical and other solvents once or twice.

Price Controls In Canada

OTTAWA, Canada (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau imposed selective wage and price controls on a major segment of Canada's economy today, saying it was on a destructive course.

The controls limit wage hikes for many workers to 10 per cent a year and restrict price boosts by some corporations to their increase in costs.

"This program of restraint is the heaviest imposed upon Canadians since the Second World War," Trudeau said in an 18-minute nationwide address Monday night.

"I am asking the people of Canada to accept tough limits on their behavior so that our economy can recover, so that we can all be better off in the future than we would be if we allowed the economy to continue along its present destructive course."

The prime minister said the controls would take effect immediately and remain "for a considerable length of time."

He said while they apply only to certain select groups "everyone is expected to observe the guidelines."

The guidelines permit annual salary increases of 8 percent, but an additional 2
